

THE BEAN AND CUP TEST — George Allspach is shown at left as he tries to decide the color of a bean beneath a cup in a test for extra-sensory perception administered by Robert Benson. This is one of five tests which have been given to a total of several hundred persons this year in a systematic study to determine what amount of ESP sensitivity exists among the students.