'69
in Retrospect

...

Enthusiasm crept slowly into the students like a cat stalking its prey. Then it seemed to explode with the fierceness of attack. It built to a frenzy of clapping hands, shrill whistles, and resounding cheers and reached heights of startling proportions. Then, when it seemed it surely must die, it was filled with a new energy and began again. Like a beating drum the steady rhythm continued through the coolness of autumn breezes, the chill of winter winds, the freshness of spring green, and the sticky dampness of May. Weepy seniors and laughing seniors, teary skies and sunny days. And, finally, reached a peak in the solemn proud stillness of graduation. "Somewhere, there's a place for us . . ." This has been our own somewhere for many years, and it will be the same for those who are to come after 68-69. It is our place, and we are proud.
